Little League tournament

For the second year in a row, Saudi Arabia ended the Eifel All Stars hopes of playing in the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa.

The Saudi Arabian team, the only team to beat the Eifel in the Transatlantic Tournament, beat the Eifel little leaguers 2-0 in Sunday's championship game in Kutno, Poland.

After losing earlier in the tournament to Saudi Arabia, the Eifel All Stars were 4-1 going into the July 13 game against Spain. A 2-1 win against Spain guaranteed the Eifel a spot in the championship.

In that game, Ben Rosen struck out nine batters for his fifth win in his six tournament appearances dating back to the all-Germany championship three weeks ago. Lee Jenkins drove in both Eifel runs.

With a 5-1 record following the victory over Spain, a Saturday match against Italy served merely as a warm-up to the finals. The Eifel All Stars drilled Italy 13-7. David Murray had the hot bat, going three-for-five at the plate with four runs batted in.

Each team in the round-robin tournament played seven teams from throughout Europe, with the teams with the top two records advancing to the championships. The Eifel All Stars finished 6-2.

Longer gas station hours

Spangdahlem Air Base's gas station starts a 90-day expanded hours test, beginning Aug. 1. The facility will operate 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday, according to Stan McGhee, AAFES manager. Depending upon use, McGhee may extend the hours even further.

In addition, he said eventually AAFES stations in the Eifel would be equipped with "swipe" cards to replace gas coupons. People will buy cards with certain amounts of liters, swipe the card, fill up and drive off. When this happens, McGhee said gas would be available 24 hours a day. No date has been firmly established yet for the installation of swipe cards.

Spangdahlem Air Base officials encourage vigilance during ORI

By Tech. Sgt. Rich Romero
52nd Fighter Wing Public Affairs Office

While the ungraded anti-terrorism/force protection phase of the U.S. Air Forces in Europe Inspector General Operational Readiness Inspection ended July 13, base officials remind people to remain vigilant during the Phase I currently underway.

"While we were challenged with demonstrations at the front gate, infiltrators, bomb threats and even a weapon of mass destruction exercise, everyone on Team Eifel was alert," said Col. Greg Ihde, 52nd Fighter Wing commander. "Your quick reactions permitted us to take control of each situation and perform the necessary actions to minimize the risk to our people."

Comments from local and IG officials support that assessment.

"It was absolutely awesome to see how well the entire wing meshed to make a virtually impenetrable screen," said Maj. Larry Laird, 52nd Security Forces Squadron commander. "I saw numerous examples of how alert folks out on the ramp and in the maintenance areas detected the 'bad guys' even before the event could develop."

Feedback from the IG team was positive and team members offered minor suggestions on ways to improve the base plan, Ihde said.

"My hat is off to everyone for the hustle and positive attitudes you demonstrated during the evaluation; first-class as always," he said. "As you are all aware, the threat to us is very real overseas and we must remain vigilant."

Laird believes the base demonstrated a solid ability to

571 Team Eifel airman learn of promotion to staff sergeant

RANDOLPH AIR FORCE BASE, Texas — The Air Force selected 20,793 of 32,170 eligible senior airmen for promotion to staff sergeant for the O1ES cycle, an overall 64.63-percent selection rate.

This is the highest promotion rate in the 30-year history of the Weighted Airman Promotion System, Air Force Personnel Center officials said.

The selection rate represents a 13.89-percent increase from last year's previous record of 50.74 percent.

The average selectee this year has 1.95 years time in grade and 4.73 years in service.

Spangdahlem Air Base's selection rate was slightly higher, at 71.1 percent. Out of 776 eligible, 571 made the list this year.

More vacancies have been created by more first- and second-term airmen than expected choosing not to re-enlist the past couple of years. When 'retention' is low, it leads to more staff sergeant slots that are then filled through promotions, he said.

A two-year-old Air Force initiative that increases the number of E-5, E-6 and E-7 vacancies has also improved promotion opportunities.

Previously, the percentage of "top five" noncommissioned officers was limited to 48.5 percent of the enlisted force; a number that officials here anticipate will continue to rise.

"We think these opportunities, with earlier promotions and pay increases, should be a great incentive for airmen to stay in the Air Force," Haley said.

People who tested will receive score notices, which will let them see how their Promotion Fitness Examination and Specialty Knowledge Test scores rank against those they competed with for promotion within their Air Force Specialty Code.

Accidents

By Staff Sgt. Edward D. Paxton
52nd Security Forces Squadron Reports and Analysis

Team Eifel experienced 29 accidents during the past week, six of which were major accidents.

The first happened when a family member failed to check for traffic while operating a bicycle. As a result, he struck a vehicle backing in a parking lot of Bitburg Annex housing. The bicyclist was treated for minor injuries.

The next occurred on L-39 between Herforst and Speicher. An investigation determined the airman was traveling too fast for road conditions. She lost control of her vehicle, collided with a German National forced another military member to drive his vehicle into a field. The airman sustained injuries and was transported to the Bitburg Krankenhaus.

Another major accident involved an airman traveling on B-50 between Gransodrf and Gelsdorf. An investigation determined the airman swerved to avoid wildlife, causing her vehicle to skid off the road. The airman wasn't injured, but the vehicle was totaled.

An airman was blinded by on-coming vehicle lights on B-50 near the town of Metterich and hit a guardrail on the curve and then collided into a house. The vehicle was totaled and the house has a broken garage door.

The final two major accidents, which were off base, involved people under the influence of alcohol. The first happened when an airman lost control of his vehicle and rear-ended a parked vehicle, forcing that vehicle to collide with another. The other occurred when an airman lost control of the vehicle and struck a guardrail. Neither airmen were injured, but both vehicles were totaled.

The 23 minor accidents involved:

- Five caused by "speeds too fast for conditions".
- One animal strike.
- One involved hitting an object on the road.
- One hit and run.
- Six were from inattentive driving
- Six occurred in parking lots.
- Three were from improper backing.

Also, 20 citations were issued. Keep in mind these driving tips:

■ Call one of these before you get behind the wheel after consuming alcohol.

protect wing assets and execute missions; in part, because of the "can do" attitude displayed across the base, from the flightline to the customer service line at the base exchange.

"Absolutely drop-dead fantastic," he said. "The Phase I ORI will confirm that capability as well as demonstrate our ability to project that capability to deployed locations."

ORIs are used to evaluate the ability of units with a wartime or contingency mission to conduct assigned operational missions. The wing is being evaluated on how well it responds, employs forces, provides mission support and survives and operates in a hostile environment.

During the remainder of the inspection at Spangdahlem Air Base and its deployed location, base officials remind people to stay focused and vigilant.

Cost comparison

Col. Greg Ihde, 52nd Fighter Wing commander, announced recently the eight-person enlisted military aircraft transient alert maintenance operation would convert to a contractor operation.

Competition between in-house and contract performance was determined to be the most efficient and cost-effective method of operation. Officials anticipate no adverse impact on employees.

This cost comparison was conducted in compliance with Air Force Instruction 38-203, "Commercial Activities," that implements the Office of Management and Budget Circular A-76, "Performance of Commercial Activities." This reaffirms the government's policy to rely on the private sector for products and services. When in-house performance of commercial activities isn't required for national defense reasons and contracting is more cost effective, conversion to contractors is in the best interest of the American taxpayers.

Change of command

Lt. Col. Christopher Moore assumes command of the 52nd Communications Squadron during a ceremony at 2 p.m. July 27 at the Airman's Memorial Park.

Moore comes to Spangdahlem Air Base from the U.S. Air Force Communication and Information Resources Division in the Pentagon.

Outgoing commander Lt. Col. Frank Brooks Jr. heads to the Air Force Communication Agency at Scott Air Force Base, Ill.

A reception follows the ceremony in the Spang Club. For more information, call 2nd Lt. Ross Savedra at 452-6010 or 452-2925.

Air Force Ball

The Company Grade Officer's Council-sponsored Air Force Ball takes place at 6:30 p.m. Sept. 7. This year's theme is "NATO and Spangdahlem Air Base United in Airpower." Tickets are available now by e-mailing Capt. Ratna Contractor.

ALS positions

The Pitsenbarger Airman Leadership School needs a staff sergeant and master sergeant (or select) for instructor duty. Reporting dates are in December (staff) and February (master). Applications must be submitted to the school by Sept. 1 for both positions.

To apply or for more information, call Master Sgt. Steve Barnes at 452-9499.

Clinic closure

The family practice clinic, including immunizations and outpatient records, closes at 2:30 p.m. July 27 for a mandatory commander's call. For more information, call 452-8142.

Postal hours limited

Both the Spangdahlem Air Base and Bitburg Annex post offices limits service July 27 because of the 52nd Communication Squadron change of command ceremony.

The finance window at Spangdahlem AB opens 10 a.m. to noon with parcel pick-up available 7 a.m. to noon; at Bitburg Annex, the finance window opens 9-11 a.m. with parcel pick-up 9 a.m. to noon.

Vehicle washing

The only authorized vehicle washing area on the Bitburg Annex is the services car wash near the gate. German environmental regulations deem the Bitburg area as a water protection zone; therefore, water pollutants and soaps are to be used only in designated areas. Call the 52nd Civil Engineer Squadron Environmental Flight at 452-6082 for details.

Dormitory managers

The 52nd Civil Engineer Squadron unaccompanied housing flight needs military members to apply for dormitory manager duty. Staff through master sergeants are eligible.

For more information, call Master Sgt. Donnie Henderson at 452-5556.

Mail hold

Postal regulations require parcels not claimed within 15 days to be returned to the sender. To prevent this from happening while on leave or TDY, postal customers should complete a PS Form 2258, "Temporary Mail Disposition Instruction," before departing the area.

By using the form, customers may elect to have their mail held or forwarded.

Overseas car conversion can prove costly

By Robert Szostek
U.S. European Command Customs Office

MANNHEIM, Germany - Americans in Europe must beware of foreign car dealers who claim they can convert cars to U.S. standards. The Department of Transportation and the Environmental Protection Agency only accept work done and warranted by expert companies in the United States. These agencies don't recognize the work of overseas companies or individuals.

Fines, extra bonds and storage fees will ensue people trying to import a vehicle "converted" overseas. A simple computer check of the vehicle identification number is all U.S. Customs needs to detect these fraudulent imports. Trying to recoup the money you paid the dealer can also be difficult.

It's usually cheaper for people moving stateside to sell their foreign-specification cars abroad and buy another car after returning stateside. "Shipping, paperwork, emissions work and safety conversion cost an importer at least $6,500, and up to $25,000 for more exotic cars," said Michael L. Burkert, director of the U.S. European Command's Customs Executive Agency.

"It's tempting to save some of that expense by doing work here in Europe," he added. "But car shippers must realize that conversion work done overseas isn't licensed or inspected by U.S. agencies. Also, DOT work must be warranted for eight years and for a $2,000 parts defect. Emissions conversions must be warranted for 50,000 miles or five years, whichever comes first. This kind of quality has its price."

Burkert explained used vehicles rebuilt by the original manufacturer to U.S. specifications are eligible for import with the proper documents.

Under EPA regulations, nonconforming vehicles less than 21 years old may only enter the United States through an independent commercial importer. These vehicles must be tested and adapted to the emission standards in effect at the time of production.

Vehicles 21 years old or older don't require tests or conversions. DOT requires shippers of nonconforming vehicles to sign a contract with a registered importer who must certify in advance that the model is convertible to U.S. safety standards. The owner must also post a bond for one and a half times the vehicle's dutiable value.

"Vehicles over 25 years old don't need conversion to U.S. safety, bumper and theft prevention standards," Burkert added.

Get the "Importing a Car" pamphlet from a military customs office for more information on shipping foreign vehicles, or consult the military customs Web site at www.hqsareur.army.mil/opm/cars.htm. (U.S. Air Forces in Europe News Service)

Like bees flying in and out of the hive, Henry Krones, Klaus Theis and other gardeners quickly buzz by each other as they tote trays of bedding flowers from the Bitburg Annex greenhouse to a pick-up truck for shipping to Spangdahlem Air Base.

Each year, they have only about three weeks in late May to early June to distribute and plant more than 35,000 home-grown flowers. A photo album full of pictures of Spangdahlem AB and the Bitburg Annex flowerbeds throughout the years is reviewed annually so gardeners can reproduce favored designs.

"Initially it's a lot of hard work," said Krones, 52nd Civil Engineer Squadron greenhouse supervisor. "But it doesn't end there - after planting we must also continue weeding the beds and watering them."

And the job doesn't end there. The base greenhouse grows and maintains about 50 popular flower varieties, most of which aren't indigenous to Germany, including the geranium from South Africa and the Canna plant from Cuba.

"People tend to think the flowers grow on their own," said Tech. Sgt. Douglas Knepp, NCOIC of greenhouse services. "The reality is working in the greenhouse is a busy full-time job."

Organizations begin picking up flowers among 52,000 flowers maintained in the greenhouse, to decorate buildings on the third week of May and through the third week of June. The 52nd Civil Engineer Squadron family housing residents choose the flowers after planting base flowerbeds. The most popular plant, chosen for its long life and less water than other flower varieties.

In August, greenhouse gardeners begin taking cuttings by snipping the tips of the plants and placing them in special rows with other plant varieties that will be planted in the summer and well into autumn.

During the "off season" for plant seeds and cuttings, maintenance workers maintain about 75 percent of the base's flowers.

The greenhouse staff recycle the topsoil, sanitizes it by using peat moss and fertilizer.

This recycling saves the base about $75,000 compared to the cost of buying flowers annually, Knepp said.

The greenhouse is part of the 52nd Civil Engineer Squadron Pavements and Equipment Flight and is maintained year-round by two permanent employees, Krones and Theis. Other gardeners are hired to help throughout the summer.

The "new" 480 square-meter greenhouse was constructed in December 1996 for $170,733. Formerly, five small greenhouses, constructed soon after Bitburg Air Base was first established, were used.

The new facility not only provides more space, but is also much more efficient, Krones explained. Thermal curtains block or absorb the sun's rays throughout the year as the greenhouse's internal temperature climbs in the summer and falls in the winter. Greenhouse windows also open and close automatically to adjust the temperature and prevent the wind from harming delicate plants. The option to water the plants by hand was chosen to make it easier to adjust the amount of water the plants get. Worktables were also constructed with rollers to optimize space.

To save even more money and help the environment, the greenhouse also reuses plastic plant pots. Rather than put them into recycling or trash bins, people may drop off their unwanted reusable plant pots at the greenhouse 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Henry Krones, 52nd Civil Engineer Squadron greenhouse supervisor, plants new flowers in a flowerbed near the Spangdahlem AB Child Development Center annex.

Gardeners at the 52nd CES greenhouse located on the Bitburg Annex combine ground cattle horn, shown here, with ground cattle bone to use as fertilizer. In Germany, using organic fertilizers, such as the horn and bone mixture, is preferred instead of chemically-derived fertilizers.

Art, culture combine in Beaufort, Luxembourg

By Iris Reiff

52nd Fighter Wing Public Affairs Office

The small community of Beaufort, Luxembourg, turns into an art gallery now through July 29, with a giant multi-cultural celebration taking place today through Sunday.

More than 114 artists display a variety of temporary art at the beautiful Beaufort castle and other well known cultural spots in town. A variety of musical concerts and an entertainment program are scheduled.

"We are expecting more than 6,000 visitors from Holland, Belgium, Germany and Luxembourg to take part in this annual, extraordinary event," said George Richette, community secretary and main organizer of the "Art in Beaufort."

The event kicks off tonight, at 7, with the official opening of the art exposition at the Beaufort castle. "The Convertibles" rock'n roll band performs at 8:30 p.m. with an audiovisual entertainment performance following at 10 p.m. Andre Mergenthaler, a well-known European electric cello soloist takes the stage at about 11 p.m. at the castle.

Activities continue Saturday with several bands and choirs performing beginning at 3 p.m., including a highlight performance by the "Big Mama Golden Six Gospel Singers" at 8:30 p.m.

Sunday's entertainment includes a scarecrows parade at 2 p.m. starting at the castle and ending in the center of Beaufort. Sunday's attractions include a body painting performance by "Feel The Color" at 3 and 5 p.m. at the castle, a concert performed by people on bikes, starting at 4 p.m. in the center of town and a country music concert by Buffalo C. Wayne "The European Texan" at 5 p.m. also in the center of town.

For those who prefer jazz music, a concert by "The Garlies" follows at 7:30 p.m. in the center of town. More entertainment occurs throughout the day and evening, including rock, pop, jazz and traditional brass band music. A lot of international food specialties and beverages are available. Entry is free to all events.

A shuttle bus is available between the castle, the town center and local parking lots.

The Beaufort Castle is a renaissance castle, reaching back to the 17th century and a castle ruin, which also has an original torture room. The ruin dates back to the 11th century.

Walking and hiking trails are the landmark for the area where Beaufort is located.

"We would love to welcome our American friends to this year's 'Art in Beaufort' festival," said Richette.

The original idea for the festival was to convert a village into an art gallery and bring together multiple cultures," Richette added.
